Three dead in Valley highway accidents

Three people are dead and at least two others injured following three accidents in the Chateauguay Valley during the past week.

The most recent occurred shortly after 7 p.m. Monday, when a car containing three people missed a curve on Route 201 south of Ormstown (uprooting the "curve" sign in the process) and flipped upside down in the roadside field.

The driver and front-seat passenger, Daniel Lussier, 32, of Sherrington, and Hubert Lord, 59, of Ste-Clotilde, were thrown from the car and declared dead by coroner Dr. Gordon Thompson.

Godmanchester crash

A 31 year-old mother died in a single-car accident in Godmanchester on the evening of Wednesday Oct. 1. Her one-year-old daughter, who was in the car with her, miraculously escaped injury.

Allison Rocheleau of St-Anicet lost control of her car on the Plank Rd. near Rang 4 about 7 p.m. The vehicle hit a rock in the opposite ditch and turned over. A passing cyclist reported the accident.

Rocheleau, severely injured, was taken to Ormstown's Barrie Memorial Hospital and later transferred to life-support facilities at the Montreal General where she died two days later.
